REPORT ON GAIDA

Czech General Said To Have Departed; Troops Still Retreating

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Irkutsk, Nov. 24.—Changes in the Kolchak Administration are in progress. The Supreme Ruler has entrusted the Minister of the Interior, General Pepelaieff, who formerly commanded on the Siberian Northern front, and is known for his democratic sympathies, with the formation of a new Cabinet.

The resignation of the recently appointed Minister of Finance, M. Goyer, and of the Minister of Foreign Affairs, M. Sukin, are expected.

The late Premier, M. Vologodsky, one of the original members of the Ufa Directorate and a moderate socialist, has been given the important post of President of the Committee for organising the elections for the Siberian Constituent Assembly. Admiral Kolchak remains with his troops at the front.

GOVERNMENT AT IRKUTSK

Irkutsk, Nov. 25.—All the Government officers are now established at Irkutsk and have begun normal work.

The following communique is issued by General headquarters:

"In the direction of the Omsk railway our troops occupy a position west of the station of Kolonia. In the region south of the railway our troops have retreated after heavy fighting. On the Orenburg front, the enemy has occupied the town of Kokchetav.

The Russian Telegraph Agency states, "General Gaida left Siberia on November 20. Before his departure he promised the All-Russian Government never to return to Russia and to make no propaganda, nor ever start any activity against the existing All-Russian Government."

Lower Ocean Rates Asked By Hongkong Not To Be Granted

Ship Conference Gives Reply To Plea Of Exporters And Importers

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hongkong, Nov. 25.—The Association of Exporters and Importers recently made representations to the Homeward Freight Conference, urging the latter to reconsider its decision of October 27, to raise the freight rate on general homewards cargo twenty shillings a ton.

The Conference in reply states that it has given the matter the fullest consideration, taking cognisance of all aspects of the question, but it is unable to cancel the rise, which in its opinion is justified. The Conference expresses the view that Hongkong dealers should not have made sales to London without first obtaining freight accommodation. In conclusion the Conference promises relief at the earliest possible opportunity.

The Conference's reply has caused great disappointment.

Local Money Market Eases When Exchange Rates Drop; Exporters Are Still Hard Hit

Brisk Buying By Importers Helps Situation; Value Of Roubles Cause Of Interior Demand; Big Silver Shipments On Way From America

With the export business practically at a standstill and importers refraining from buying gold until they believed exchange had reached the top figure, the local money market perceptibly eased when the rate dropped to 160 on America and 8s. 1d. late yesterday afternoon starting a boom in the purchase of gold drafts. All banks except the Japanese and one or two other foreign institutions sold export bills, several doing big business.

The situation is no longer alarming although exporters are practically paralysed by the high rate of exchange. Occasional jumps in the past ten days made it impossible for exporters to purchase at figures quoted by the New York connections because the cables are four or five days late and the rate has been consistently rising.

But with importers buying, banks are selling export bills as they are covered by the silver paid for the gold drafts purchased by buyers of foreign goods.

The Japanese banks yesterday afternoon announced that they would not sell export bills but will cover for the next 30 days all export bills previously sold, according to brokers. Bankers state that the Japanese institutions have less silver than some other foreign banking corporations. They yesterday offered high rates to gold buyers in order to draw cash in. Even yesterday afternoon a Japanese bank quoted 168 on a cash transaction in American currency.

BIG SUPPLY HERE

The high price of silver of course governs this market while the law of supply and demand is a factor. Silver was quoted at G.$1.37 yesterday. Yet there is in Shanghai more silver than a year ago, the value of the present supply being over Taels 1,250,000 than a year ago.

The largest quantities of silver in history have been purchased in America for China and big shipments are now on the way out here. The United States Government has announced that it has no objection to the export of American silver dollars, according to cables received yesterday from New York by one of the big Shanghai banks.

Neither the bankers or brokers are alarmed at the present condition of the market despite the inability of exporters to do business. They point out that importers have been waiting for exchange to reach the highest point.

When importers believe this has been reached, there will be brisk buying, the demand will force the rate down and banks will again have more than enough local currency to negotiate all export bills. Had the banks been open an hour later a big demand would have followed the drop late in the afternoon, it was said.

Exporters will be inconvenienced for another week or two until supplies of silver arrive in Shanghai, according to those who are in touch with the situation.

In an attempt to restore normality to the money market and prevent sudden leaps in rates, bankers held two meetings but came to no agreement. The representatives of local banking houses even went so far as to discuss the issue of gold paper currency. But they came to no agreement and it was suggested that Chinese would hesitate in accepting the gold paper.

ROUBLE VALUE CAUSE

The fact that the rouble is practically worthless in Shantung, Manchuria and Mongolia is the cause of the tremendous shipments to the interior of silver, according to a leading banker.

Chinese business men in the North demand silver as the only alternative is Japanese yen. And the boycott is still effective. The demands from the interior have caused the absorption of much silver originally consigned to Shanghai. It is also said that Chinese banks are holding silver for Chinese New Year, which is February 19.

Any anxiety of banks and business men will be relieved by the big shipments of silver on the way from the United States and purchases made in America which are yet to be shipped to China.

NEW CABINET PRO-JAPANESE, SAYS DR. SUN

Declares Premier Author Of 1918 Pact With Nipponese

TELLS WAR AIMS

Says He Started Strife In China In Order To Dictate Terms

UNISON REMOTE

Fears No Bolshevism In Country Because Of Labor Status

The nominees of the new Cabinet are absolutely pro-Japanese according to Dr. Sun Yat-sen, first President of the Republic of China. Dr. Sun said yesterday General Chin Yun-peng, the Premier, was the author of the military pact concluded during his visit at the Japanese autumn maneuvers in 1918, while Mr. Chow Tse-chi, one time nominee for the finance portfolio who had a slight pro-American inclination, has been considered undesirable by the Anfu Parliament.

Dr. Sun, commenting on Reuter's despatch about a letter being sent to him to urge a Soviet revolution in China, said that there is no chance for the spread of Bolshevism in this country. He has not yet received the letter and doesn't expect to, saying many of the letters sent to him by British socialists were intercepted by the British authorities.

STARTED INTERNAL WAR

"It was I who started the internal war," said Dr. Sun. I started it so I can dictate peace in China. My only terms are that Parliament must have full liberty in the execution of its functions. As soon as the Peking Government is compelled to accept my terms, we can have peace. General Tuan Chi-jui has already accepted my terms, but there is another clique which refuses to allow Parliament to be reconvened.

"Hsu Shih-chang does not wish to have parliament reconvened because he was himself elected by the illegal Parliament and would have to be put out of office, if the new Parliament were dissolved. Japan does not want the old Parliament to be reconvened, because it will repudiate all the secret treaties concluded between Tokio and Peking. With these hindrances, peace is still remote.

"The Northern army, however, will not fight us. The North may send millions of troops and huge quantities of money to fight the South. But we have a means of neutralising these forces. As soon as they arrive on the battle front, they lay down their arms and become our friends. I can safely say that within three months after their arrival they become neutrals if they do not actually befriend us. Bolshevism, you may be pleased to call it, but we are not afraid of huge armies and modern arms of war!

PREDICTS LU'S DEFEAT

"Sometime ago, Hsu Shih-chang secured the support of one of the strongest Southern leaders in the person of Lu Yung-ting and there were negotiations for a separate peace between the Northern and the Southern militarists. Today the Southern Constitutionalists are fighting Lu Yung-ting and within six months, Lu will be crushed in spite of his strong military support.

"General Tuan, on the other hand, is repentant. He realises that he did wrong and wants to amend his former acts. He is willing to come to terms with me, but there is too much opposition. He finds himself no longer strong enough to break the bondage of his former associates. He was pro-Japanese, but he now finds too much opposition even when he wishes to be anti-Japanese."

Dr. Sun is confident that Bolshevism will not penetrate China. He said it is an agitation of labor against capital but in China capitalism is not developed and laborers only live from hand to mouth.

"I have always advocated government control of railways, mines and waterpowers, the keys to national industry," said Dr. Sun, "because this will dispense with the fight against capital once and for all. This is a preventive measure against the evils of capitalism and, as the English proverb says, prevention is better than cure. In this respect, I am

LABOR MEN ASK REPRESENTATION AT BIG MEETING

Wire Peking China Should Be Represented At United States Conference

TELEGRAM OF CRITICISM

Shanghai Union Asks Why Government Has Named No Delegates

The appointment of a Chinese delegation to the International Labor Conference now in session in Washington was asked yesterday in a telegram addressed to the Peking Government by the Shanghai Labor Union. The message styled the failure of the Peking Government to appoint the delegation, after invitation was extended to it by the conference, as abandonment of the right of representation in international relationship.

The message reads in part:

"We are greatly alarmed upon learning that the Government has finally decided not to send any representatives to the International Labor Conference. The question of labor today concerns the peace of the world; and the supply of Chinese labor ranks first among the nations of the world.

"Why should China be denied the privilege of having a voice in the reorganisation of labor? Even if the government is content to neglect its national rights and depreciate the value of its status, it should not allow the Chinese laborers to be administered in accordance with the wish of other countries.

"The importance of Chinese labor is already being felt by the world. The Government has been advertising with pride the role played by Chinese labor during the war and the accomplishment of the 500,000 Chinese laborers at the various fronts in her fight at the peace table.

"There are many men who are well versed in the labor conditions of the country and are qualified to represent the country at the conference. We are at a loss to know the real motive of the Government in refraining from appointing the representatives."

Paris, November 21.—Great Britain and France have exchange ratifications of the Treaty whereby Great Britain promises to assist France in the event of German aggression.

America Is Exporting Much Gold And Silver

Value Of Shipments In Past Nine Months Runs To $480,000,000

(Reuter's Service)

London, November 20.—A New York telegram to the Times states that according to the United States Department of Commerce, in nine months this year the United States exported nearly $226,000,000 worth of gold of which $59,000,000 worth went to South America and $116,000,000 worth to Asia. The United States also exported $109,000,000 worth of silver to India and $29,000,000 worth to China. Practically all these exports were made on behalf of Europe.

ARMED STRENGTH OF GERMANY IS AN UNKNOWN FACTOR

London Given Report Forces Are Now Divided Into Three Categories

ARMY HAS 100,000 MEN

Size Of Membership In Corps Of Volunteers Remains Matter Of Doubt

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 21.—Discussing the estimates of Germany's armed strength to which prominence has recently been given an authority who has just returned from Germany informed Reuter's representative that there are three categories of armed forces in Germany, (1) the national army of 100,000 as fixed at Versailles; (2) the public defense corps, estimated at 100,000 men concentrated in the cities and tantamount to permanent military police, all the men being ex-soldiers and living in barracks, (3) the citizens defense corps, consisting of volunteers, which sprang into existence as the result of the Spartacist troubles last year, when it actively contributed to the repression of disturbances.

It is not possible to calculate the number of this corps, but it is known to be well-armed and officered and there is no doubt that the reactionaries count on its support. The force possesses organisations in the rural districts besides in the towns. Stocks of arms and munitions have been broad-casted throughout Germany for emergencies, notably in Pomerania, where every country house is an arsenal.

The authority, when in Berlin, was most impressed with the growth of British prestige. The Germans, especially business men, believe that Great Britain is most sympathetic towards the reconstruction of Germany and look hopefully to Great Britain and her Colonies for raw materials, without which Germany would starve.

British Battleships To Carry Passengers

Measure Is Adopted To Enable Trade Representatives To Make Journeys

(Reuter's Service)

London, November 19.—In the House of Commons today Sir Hamar Greenwood, Under Secretary of State for the Department of Overseas Trade, announced that arrangements had been made whereby the Admiralty would give the Department of Overseas Trade early information of any sailings of His Majesty's ships which might be utilised in order to allow representatives of British manufacturing and trading concerns to travel to distant ports, and the Department of Overseas Trade would allocate the berths available to business men.

PEACE TREATY WILL BE PUT INTO EFFECT

Failure Of America To Ratify Not To Delay Action Of Allies

LONDON WAITING

Situation Regarded As Grave But Is Not Yet Desperate

VIEW IS HOPEFUL

Chance Is Seen Opposing Interests May Yet Come To Agreement

(American Wireless Service)

Washington, November 19.—The next session of Congress will open on December 1.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 21.—In the House of Commons today, replying to Mr. Arthur Henderson, Mr. Bonar Law said that the absence of President Wilson's ratification of the Treaty would not prevent the remaining Allies carrying it into effect.

He assured the House that the Government would not slacken in its determination to see the League of Nations become effective.

The situation arising out of the American Senate's action on the Peace Treaty is regarded by the London Press as grave though not yet desperate, as in view of the momentous world issues involved, it is hoped that the ten days between now and the next session will be utilised to effect agreements between the opposing parties.

STILL AT WAR

A curious fact is that the action of the Senate leaves the United States technically at War with Germany. Thus even a delay in ratification is serious as affecting the early stabilisation of world-peace in the present serious economic position of Central Europe.

It is recognised that the power and authority of the League of Nations would be lamentably curtailed without America, hence the belief is expressed that the idealism which brought America into the War is still strong enough to permit her to complete the work.

DELEGATES REMAIN

Paris, Nov. 21.—The American delegates will continue to sit on the Supreme Council but in a passive role.

Paris, Nov. 21.—It is understood that the Supreme Council has decided to give Poland a Mandate over Eastern Galicia for twenty-five years after which the League of Nations will determine the future of the territory.

The Council has definitely fixed December 1 for the formal ratification of the Treaty, and is working out plans so that the enforcement of the Treaty may not be hindered, if the United States fails to ratify it later.

KOREANS TURNING TO BOLSHEVISM

Aims Outlined By Delegation At Meeting In Town In Eastern Siberia

(Reuter's Service)

London, November 19.—Some light is thrown on Bolshevist intrigues in the Far East by a Moscow message announcing the arrival of a Korean Delegation at Tcheliabinsk on November 15.

The message says that, according to the delegation, at a meeting of Korean socialists held recently in an Eastern Siberian town the Left wing gained the upper hand and it was decided that the Korean bourgeosie must be destroyed and that there should be the closest relations with Soviet Russia. A central committee was elected. It was also stated that martial law had been declared in Korea and that the Delegation considered a rising inevitable.

The message adds that the Korean delegation will attend the Congress of Soviets in Moscow in December.

Y.M.C.A. MEN IN HANGCHOW PLAN TO AID CHURCHES

Three Year Program Is Outlined By Those At Conference

GUESTS AT RECEPTION

Civil And Military Heads Entertain Delegates At Meeting

(China Press Correspondence)

Hangchow, Chekiang, Nov. 24.—All the delegates to the Y.M.C.A conference being held at Hangchow were given a reception Saturday afternoon by the military and civil governors in the West Lake Public Garden.

In the evening the Hangchow association gave a reception to the delegates, Dr. P. C. Chang, chairman of the Board of Directors presided. The address of welcome was by Mr. Sen Han-dien of the Board of Directors. This was followed by an illustrated lecture on the historic places of Hangchow by Mr. Hsu Lin-swen. Mr. Fei Chi-hao, of the Peking Association responded to the address of welcome for the Conference.

On Sunday morning the delegates attended the various churches of the city, and assisted the pastors in the services, in some cases preaching for them.

HELPING THE CHURCHES

In the afternoon the conference took unique form. The subject "The Association's Contribution to the Churches" was discussed from three different points of view. The first was by Dr. F. J. Rawlinson, editor of the Chinese Recorder, from the viewpoint of the missions operating in China. Dr. Rawlinson indicated his belief that the Association's greatest contribution to the churches might be in training men in various lines of service. This was followed by Rev. M. K. Tsur, of the Hangchow Church, who spoke of the Association as a unifying agency, as seen particularly by the pastors of Hangchow. The third point of view was that of the secretaries themselves, presented by Mr. J. H. Geldart, of the Shanghai Association, who outlined a practical three years' program of means by which the Associations all over China desire and plan to help the churches in their work.

The Sunday evening session of the conference was devoted to helpful and timely addresses by Rev. Mr. Lobenstine of the China Continuation Committee, who spoke on the "Interchurch World Movement," and Dr. C. Y. Cheng of the same committee, who greatly inspired the gathering on the topic of the "China for Christ Movement."

The conference will continue in session until Thursday evening of this week.

Mrs. G. R. Coleman To Direct Social Activity Of Club

The social department of the American Woman's Club met yesterday morning to plan its activities for the new year. Mrs. Geo. R. Coleman was unanimously elected Chairman and Mrs. Alfred Davis, Secretary. Mrs. Zanki was elected to the Special Committee. Mrs. Pulver and Mrs. Lang were assigned responsibility for membership tickets and signing of the Club's guest book at each meeting.

It was decided to divide the list of Club members in alphabetical order, to have charge of serving the tea. A Board of Hostesses was elected, two of whom will be responsible for each tea, assisted by the group assigned, and for greeting and introductions. It was requested that the Courtesies Committee assist the Social Department officers and the hostesses in promoting friendships between new and old members of the Club.

Plans for the Christmas party December 16 were discussed. It was decided to make the general club program a children's party as was so successfully done last year. Gifts for needy foreigners will be received that day by the Social Service department. Mrs. Coleman has called a meeting of the department to plan further for this party Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the Carleton. Club members who have not joined this Department may do so at the Club meeting next Tuesday.

Fight On New Cabinet Is Renewed By Anfuites

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Nov. 24.—Chin Yun-pang's compromise, whereby Chow Tsz-chi will be omitted the Cabinet, and appointed Chief of the Currency Bureau, has stiffened the back of the Anfu Club which is now objecting to the nomination of Chang Chi-tang as Minister of Commerce.

The members of the Anfu Club however are awaiting the arrival of General Hsu Shu-tseng from Urga before voting on the Cabinet.

Changes Noted In New List Of Peking Ministers

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, Nov. 23.—The nominations for the Chin Cabinet, which were sent to Parliament for ratification last evening, show a change from the original list, Li Shih-hao, the present Acting Minister of Finance and a strong Anfu man, having been substituted at the last moment for Chou Tze-chi. Chou, who was the candidate of the President and Premier for the post of Minister of Finance from the start, has been the cause of the differences between the Government and the Anfu Club and the resulting delay in submitting the Cabinet nominees to Parliament. The Anfu men, supported by the military reactionary group and all the Japanese interests in Peking, have been conducting a strong and clever anti-Chou Tze-chi campaign for the past fortnight, and their resistance has been so ably conducted that the Premier was finally forced to compromise with them.

According to the arrangement that has now been reached the Government is at liberty to appoint Chou Tze-chi to the post of Director-General of the Currency Bureau after the Cabinet has been ratified by Parliament and the new government is firmly in the saddle.

Whether or not Mr. Chou will be willing to accept this post is not known, but there is a feeling in official circles that he will not consent to serve under Li Shih-hao, who is his junior in both years and official experience. On the other hand it is pointed out that the directorship of the Currency Bureau is to a certain extent independent of the Ministry of Finance and gives the incumbent an opportunity to manage affairs fully as important as those of the Finance Ministry. Chou Tze-chi is, furthermore, looked upon here as an ideal candidate for the directorship of the Currency Bureau, where his knowledge of financial matters and his study of the currency reform problem will prove invaluable at this time.

IS ANFU VICTORY

None the less, no matter how the question is finally settled as far as Chou Tze-chi is concerned, Chin Yun-peng has unquestionably been defeated by the Anfu Club in his effort to put through the kind of Cabinet that he and the President want. The rallying together of all the Anfu and military forces, coupled with insidious Japanese press propaganda against Mr. Chou Tze-chi's pro-Western and, more particularly, pro-American inclinations have brought about Chin Yun-peng's first defeat and weakened the influence that he was expected to wield as a result of his original strong stand against the Anfu Party and for representative, non-party, government in this country.

The fight for Chou Tze-chi is, however, still going on, and Chang Hu, the Vice-Minister of Finance and prominent in official financial circles, is reported as having joined the group that opposes the appointment of Li Shih-hao.

Chang Hsu is Li Shih-hao's senior in official life and is reported as unwilling to serve under him in the Finance Ministry; and, as Chang is an Anfu man, this attitude may help to break up the strong group that has forced the present compromise on the President and Premier.

Negotiations between the various groups concerned in the Cabinet question went on today and will continue either until the issue is settled or until votes on the nominations sent in yesterday. As Parliament is not likely to meet for this purpose before Tuesday or Wednesday, there is still a chance that the friends of Chou Tze-chi and Chang Hu may force a further compromise on the Anfu Club resulting in the withdrawal of the candidature of Li Shih-hao. This compromise, if realised, will involve the submission of a modified list of nominations to Parliament, but will not, it is thought, get Chou Tze-chi in as Minister of Finance.

The issue is, in other words, a personal rather than a national matter, the idea being that Li Shih-hao cannot have the post of Minister of Finance if Chou Tze-chi cannot have it. The two principal candidates for this post must go down together and a third man suitable to both parties must be found. Chang Hu may be the man selected, and on the other hand Li Shih-hao's nomination may stand. The entire question is beyond the power of prophecy at this time.

Sunday's Concert

BY R. B. HURRY

There are two reasons for the omission of a notice of the Town Hall concert performance on Sunday last. The first is that coming in Tuesday morning's issue it is rather 'late for the fair.' The second that the present writer has never yet been able to stay for the whole of a program. On Sunday I heard the Beethoven only, and fine as it was, the notices of the whole program should have been written by someone who can stay for all three works. Monday's papers unwillingly entered into a conspiracy of silence upon a most important musical event. Mr. Paci has gathered round him musicians who play to his exacting requirements, and he has done already an enormous amount of work with them.

The tone of the strings with the increase in numbers of all five departments has not been heard here for a long time. The energy and point of the Beethoven in the 1st movement, and the Scherzo which joins up to the Finale, made something new for the Public Band. The lovely Andante with its haunting tunes and harmonies was of "symphony orchestra" standard. From those who listened to the Bantock and Grieg Suites I hear glowing accounts. The concert, described as a "Symphonic Program," promises well for the future of Shanghai music and the success of the late improvements.

Indian Border Tribes Are Not Yet Subdued

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 21.—With reference to the operations on the Indian frontier Reuter's Agency is informed that the majority of the Waziris have accepted the British terms. One section deliberately did not participated in the recent meeting with the British and consequently aerial operations against them will commence forthwith.

The attitude of two sections is at present uncertain. The effect of the air bombardment against the Mahsuds is already noticeable, and they have begun to advance peace feelers.

Wedding

SCHNARE-KLOSS

Miss Margaret B. Kloss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Shelley Kloss, of Tyrone, Pa., and Lester L. Schnare, of Washington, D.C., were married on the lawn of Maplecroft, the country home of the bride's parents, Saturday afternoon, September 27. The Reverend Robert F. Fitch, D.D., uncle of the bride, of Hangchow, China, assisted by the Reverend C. R. Scafe, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Tyrone, performed the ceremony. The bride was given away by her father.

Mrs. Henry Esplin Kloss, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor, and Miss Elizabeth Kloss, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Miss Bess Baush, of Somerset, was bridesmaid, and Lieutenant Henry Esplin Kloss, brother of the bride, was best man.

Promptly at five o'clock, a trio from the Black-Harnish orchestra of Tyrone, played the Lohengrin wedding march. Miss Betty Hooker of Tyrone, was flower-girl, and led the wedding procession.

At the alter, which was a mass of ferns and flowers, with a background of everygreens, they were met by the bridegroom and best man, and facing the altar, they took upon themselves the holy vows. It was a beautiful ceremony.

The bride is a graduate of the Birmingham School for Girls, of Columbia University, and of Westchester Normal School. For two years she taught in the American School at Shanghai, China.

The groom is a son of Mrs. Anna M. Schnare, of Macon, Georgia, and formerly in the consular service at Shanghai. For the past year he has been at Washington, D.C. as special assistant in the department of state, in charge of the vise office.

After the wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Schnare departed for an extensive tour, following which they will spend several months in Washington. It is likely that Mr. Schnare will soon be reassigned to foreign service, probably to China.

Legion Cross Given To City Of Metz

Addresses Are Delivered By Poincare In Course Of Visits To Cities

(French Wireless Service)

Paris, November 24 (via Lyons and Koukaza).—President Poincare went to Metz from Strasburg and decorated the former city with the cross of the Legion of Honor. From Metz the President proceeded to Pont-a-Mousson, to confer the Croix de Guerre on the town.

In the course of his speech, M. Poincare gave a historical survey of the tragic events which took place round Pont a Mousson from 1914 to 1918. Before leaving M. Poincare visited the great foundries at the entrance of the town, which employed large numbers of men before the war and are beginning to pick up again. The President himself lit a furnace, the first restarted since the armistice.

League Aims Stated By British Official

Need Of Unity Within Empire Keynote Of Address Of Colonial Secretary

(Reuter's Service)

London, November 20.—Lieut.-Colonel L. C. M. Amery, Under Secretary of State for the Colonies addressing a colonial missionary meeting at Bradford said that it might be argued that having established the League of Nations, concentrated efforts upon Imperial unity would become unnecessary and might even be harmful. He entirely disagreed with such a view. He said the more we developed the principles of unity and co-operation within the Empire the more we should be able to help the newer League effectively to deal with our problems. Henceforth he added, we must look ahead with wider vision.

Mr. A. P. Wood Cites City's Progress

Engineering Society Of China Meets

President In Address Reviews Onward March Of Shanghai, Shown In Strides Of Community

The opening meeting of the 1919-1920 session of the Engineering Society of China took place last evening in the Royal Asiatic Society's Rooms, 5 Museum Road.

After the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting by the Honorary Secretary and at the conclusion of routine business, Mr. A. P. Wood, the President, expressed his appreciation of the honor conferred by his election to that office in a few well-chosen words. After referring to the loss sustained by the Council of the Society by the death of the late Mr. D. C. Dick, Mr. Wood said that they had good cause to give thanks for the fact that although 24 of their fellow members had been participants in the great struggle which ended during last session, they were, so far as advices went, all well, and the Society hoped soon to welcome them back to Shanghai.

ENGINEERING PROGRESS

Mr. Wood then gave his Presidential address and chose for his subject a review of the march of engineering progress in Shanghai, in particular, and China, in general, since his previous occupancy of the presidential chair of the Society in 1902. He said that it was, at times, useful to take a glance backward and to survey, from the vantage point of the present, what had been achieved in the past. Thus, we are able to take stock of our position and see where we have gone ahead and what we have yet to achieve.

Dealing first with the progress of the Society, Mr. Wood remarked that many similar institutions had commenced life in a tavern and he instanced the Institution of Civil Engineers which first met in Kendall's Coffee House, Fleet Street, in 1818. The Engineering Society of China had certainly sought and found a more dignified jumping-off spot in 1901, when they held their first meeting in the Town Hall.

Mr. Wood then turned to the consideration of progress made by docks and wharves and drew attention to the existence today of a continuous wharf from the North Yangtszepoo Road to the Jansen Road, covering a distance of over two miles.

RAILWAYS IN CHINA

Dealing with railways, Mr. Wood said that at the time of the birth of the Society, the only railway existing in Shanghai was the sorely tried Woosung line which was originally built in 1876, to be torn up in the following year and rebuilt in 1898. Today, there are some 9,500 miles of railways operating in China, but this is a mere nothing in a country with an area of 4¼ million square miles and a reputed population of 350 millions.

Turning to the local gas industry, Mr. Wood said that in the year 1902, the gas produced amounted to 173 million cubic feet whereas production at the present time is 542 million cubic feet per annum. The advent of the incandescent mantle gave this industry a new life and the advance in efficiency and economy in heating and cooking played a great part towards fulfilling the growing demand.

Telephones next received attention and Mr. Wood said that in the near future there would be 13,000 lines and 9,000 telephones working in Shanghai. It was of interest to note that the average number of telephonic conversations taking place daily in Shanghai was well over 100,000, of which 10 percent were connected during one hour in the forenoon. Mr. Wood then said that he would deal with his own particular sphere of activity—the waterworks. The supply of water to Shanghai dated back to 1881 and the undertaking was the first of its kind to be constructed in either China or Japan. In view of the universal adoption of water supply systems, it is astonishing to note how very few towns in China have followed suit.

OUR WATER SUPPLY

Mr. Wood then proceeded to give a brief summary of the treatment to which the water is subjected when received in its turbid state from the Whangpoo and before it is delivered into the mains for distribution. The water is taken from the river at flood tide by gravitation and pumping, the latter being effected by steam and electrically operated pumps installed on the river banks. The water is discharged into six settling reservoirs having a total capacity of 42 million gallons and in those the water remains until the sediment and heavy matter is precipitated. This accomplished, the water is pumped out through floating suction pipes so arranged that the top water is always drawn off, leaving the sediment at the bottom undisturbed. The water is next pumped to the service reservoirs which are raised some ten or twelve feet so as to allow a steady flow of water by gravitation to the Filter Beds.

Here, after passing through a layer of fine sand and other filtering material, the water again flows by gravitation to the clean water reservoirs which are entirely covered in so as to prevent any possibility of pollution from the atmosphere or other sources. From here the water is pumped into the mains and thence to the consumer. Turning to statistics, Mr. Wood said that the average daily consumption of water in 1902 was 3,805,340 gallons, whereas during the past 10 months only of the present year the average daily consumption has become 14,962,950 gallons.

To meet the ever-increasing demand for water brought about by the rapid development of the Settlement and outlying districts, very big extensions are now in hand, and when completed, will maintain a constant pressure during the daytime when the demand for water is naturally at its highest.

PURIFYING SYSTEM

The principal items provide for a new pumping-engine to be used as a standby in case of accident, a new 40" main from the Pumping Station to the Settlement, and the building of extensive reservoirs and pumping plant in the Western District.

Mr. Wood concluded his remarks upon this subject by touching upon the methods of chemical and electrical purification of water and said that the various methods were the subject of careful consideration by the Company's chemist who is carrying out tests daily with the object of deciding which process is best suited for the water of the Whangpoo.

Tramways, said Mr. Wood, did not exist in 1902, but came into being in March 1908. He foresaw most promising possibilities in the future development of railless traction and gave some interesting figures bearing upon the present state of the tramway system of Shanghai, where there are already 17½ miles of route over which 78½ million passengers were carried during 1918.

Before dealing with the development of Municipal undertakings, Mr. Wood said that he was sure that all would agree with him that a feeling of indebtedness and appreciation was due to those who had served and were serving upon the Council and Special Committees.

Speaking of bridges, he said that the first important steel bridge built in Shanghai for other than railway purposes was the Garden Bridge. The building of this bridge occasioned some anxiety owing to the existence of doubt concerning the ability of the mud sub-soil to carry the weight. By carefully designing the foundations this difficulty was successfully overcome and no sign of settlement had been evidenced since the opening of the bridge to traffic in 1908. Bunding, drainage and roads were referred to by the speaker and some interesting remarks made relative to the evolution of buildings from the old hongs of "compradoric style" to the sky scrapers of today.

THE FIRE BRIGADE

Turning to the Fire Brigade, Mr. Wood referred to the great progress of the Fire Brigade to keep pace with the development of Shanghai. The Brigade is now an all motor one with a total of 21 machines, and is at present one of the most up-to-date in the Far East, always ready at a moment's notice to turn out and extinguish fires, big or small.

The wonderful development of the Municipal Electricity Department next claimed Mr. Wood's attention and he said that the existence of a supply of cheap power is of utmost importance to the industrial development of Shanghai. With the completion of the extensions now in hand, the Riverside power station will be in a position to handle a load of 77,600 kilowatts or say 100,000 horsepower. The estimated load for the coming year is 34,000 kilowatts and an output of 130,000,000 units is anticipated. The turbo-generators now being installed are of 20,000 kilowatts capacity each and individual transformers of similar capacity are included in the lay-out. With the generation of power upon such a huge scale it would be clear that the Municipal undertaking was in a position to supply at rates unapproachable by the relatively small individual mill and other industrial plants.

MUTUAL CONGRATULATION

Reference was then made by Mr. Wood to this being the hundredth anniversary of the death of James Watt, the founder of the steam engine; also to the wonderful idea of Jules Verne, whose forecasts in his books written about 1873 have practically eventuated during the late war. He referred to the phenomenal growth of various industries, notably cotton, flour and rice milling and concluded his address by saying that he thought that the survey he had attempted justified mutual congratulation upon living in a thoroughly progressive community and the further felt that the facts collected were a promise of still greater achievement. Mr. Wood's address was closely followed by a representative gathering of the Society's membership and, in moving a vote of thanks, Mr. J. Prentice said that all would agree that Mr. Wood had been happy in the choice of his subject which he was pre-eminently qualified to do justice by virtue of his long and close association with engineering matters in the Far East. Mr. Prentice's proposal was accepted with acclamation and the meeting terminated.

Growth Of Shanghai Revealed In Address

An excellent idea of the growth of Shanghai is obtainable from the review of engineering progress contained in the address of Mr. A. P. Wood, president of the Engineering Society of China yesterday.

Mr. Wood pointed out that in 1902 the gas produced here amounted to 173,000,000 cubic feet. Today it is 542 million cubic feet. There will shortly be 13,000 telephone lines and 9,000 telephones working here with an average number of telephonic conversations of more than 100,000. Shanghai has 17½ miles of tramway over which 78,500,000 passengers were carried last year.

In 1902 the average daily water consumption here was 3,805,340 gallons. In the last ten months it jumped to 14,962,950 gallons.

The Fire Brigade is now an all-motor one with a total of 21 machines, and is one of the most modern in the Far East. The municipal electricity department is prepared to furnish cheap power so essential to industrial development. The Riverside power station, when the extensions are completed, will be in a position to handle a load of 77,600 kilowatts or about 100,000 horse power.

The estimated load for the coming year is 34,000 kilowatts and an output of 130,000,000 units is anticipated.

Shanghai now boasts of a continuous wharf from the North Yangtsze Road to the Jansen Road, a distance of more than two miles.

'Vanity Fair'

"Vanity Fair" in its fourth change of program started out in dull and prose-like fashion last night and stayed there with few breaks until the toyshop fantasy from "Night-time in Doll Land" towards the close of Part One. Then the spell was broken and the amateurish tone was gone. The players had found their audience. "Night-time" was but a mechanical doll performance in song but it was done with great effect. Madge Griffith's solo work won recognition.

The fox trot and hesitation waltz by Vera Pain and Steve Laurie were well appreciated. But perhaps the hit of the evening was the easy and unaffected singing of the deep-voiced George Graystone. He was recalled back again and again.

The comedians, Leslie Holmes, Sydney Mannering and George Titchener, never fail to win the house with their droll singing. The costuming throughout the program was not exceptional until the carnival scene which showed he chorus to much better advantage and in the Il Trovatore in rag-time the staging was all in art that could be asked.

Two comments in general can be made of "Vanity Fair," the cast can really sing and the performance is in thoroughly good taste throughout.

A change of program will take place tomorrow night for the Vanity Fair entertainment at the Lyceum Theater. There will be many special features including "Rose Petal's" a charming song by Miss Thelma Lawn and the "Mummy," a farcical-comedy to be played by Sydney Mannering, as an eccentric medico, George Tuchener, his assistant and Leslie Holmes, as a burglar.

New terpischorean novelties will be presented by Miss Vera Pain and Mr. Steve Laurie and many other attractions. Booking will begin today at Moutrie's. The show will be started promptly at 9:15 o'clock.

Appearing before American Assessor Tenny and Magistrate Li yesterday on a charge of attempted burglary at 3481 Mohawk Road, Sian admitted that he had just completed a three weeks prison sentence at Kiukiang and that this was his sixth conviction here. He was sentenced to six months imprisonment at the conclusion of which he will be expelled from the Settlement.

Passengers on a steamer of the N. Y. K. line will go without mushrooms on their steak some day soon because a coolie has an appetite for delicacies. The coolie was hungry and craved fancy chow, he told American Assessor Jacobs and Magistrate Li yesterday. Seeing three pounds of mushrooms in a godown on North Yangtsze Road the coolie appropriated them to his own use. A policeman saw the man with the loot and, suspecting the mushrooms were not in the regular diet of a coolie, placed him under arrest. He admitted the theft, naively explaining that to him mushrooms were simply irresistable. He was given two days in prison in which to meditate on the evil of his ways.

While he was standing before a shop in North Szechuen Road, contemplating a purchase, a Chinese suddenly discovered that he was bare-headed, his new $2 hat having been snatched from his head by a servant. He made a loud outcry and the offender was captured. American Assessor Jacobs and Magistrate Li heard the case yesterday and sent the servant to prison for a week.

Large Variety Of Smart Hats Seen This Season

BY HELEN WILLIAMS

THERE is nothing that can add or detract from the smartness of a costume so much as the style of the hat that is worn. This season one has such a large variety of unusually smart and original hats to chose from that it is quite possible for everybody to select hats that will give a most distinctive touch to the general ensemble.

In looking over the lovely hats that are being displayed, it seems that there are hats to suit almost every type of face. For the debutante, the large soft hat, and one that has the brim rolled high from the face, are the most becoming. One of the prettiest and most youthful models shown has a wide brim edged with a soft fold of velvet with bars of black jet as the only trimming. Another smart model, which is worn at a decidedly pert angle over one eye, is a dove-gray corded velvet, with a coquetish little bow of black ribbon at the very edge of the hat.

For tailored wear, smartness and originality are the keynote of the season. One model has a very high crown with a narrow brim. It is of velvet, in midnight blue, with stiff blue quills around the entire brim and these quills are extremely high on one side, gradually growing shorter towards the front.

FEATHERS USED EXTENSIVELY

Feathers are being used extensively for afternoon and evening wear. One of the most attractive combinations seen is a black velvet hat, cut wider on one side than on the other, and the entire top of the hat crowned with a mass of dull green uncurled ostrich-plumes. Another lovely model with feathers as trimming has a dropping maline brim, with flat feathers lying on the brim and with a folded band of gold-edged black ribbon encircling the crown.

Whiteaway, Laidlaw and Company announce that they have received some new silk Jersey dresses. Most of these are two piece dresses, with the fashionable short sleeve, and with the Roman stripe used as a trimming on the collar, cuffs and around the bottom of the blouse of the dress. There are some flannel two piece dresses and several have beaver fur on the collar and cuffs. New fox furs, beaver and skunk in all the new models are being shown here.

Those who are interested in purchasing a smart and becoming evening frock can probably find just what they want at Boyes Bassett's for they are making a specialty of evening clothes and all the dainty accessories. They are constantly receiving new shipments from Paris, London and New York.

FOR AFTERNOON WEAR

There is a lovely flame colored velvet frock, with a feather draped from the upper edge of the bodice far below the waist line. Then there is a dainty lavender dress of the softest satin. It has a tier skirt, and each tier has a ruffle edging it, while the bodice is made of wide folds of the lavender satin. For afternoon wear there is a wonderful chiffon velvet dress, with a small round collar edged with grograine ribbon, and a belt of narrow silver ribbon. This dress has large pockets which are edged with fluted grograine ribbon, and these pockets give a wide effect at the hips, forming a beautiful contrast to the extremely narrow skirt.

The brocaded silks being shown at Lau Kiu Chwang's are of many colors and designs. Some are brocaded in silver and others in gold. Some of the prettiest combinations are the red and gold, blue and gold, black and silver and black and gold. These brocaded materials can be used in the making of beautiful evening frocks or evening wraps, and silver or gold trimmings are always most effective when used with these combinations.

CZECHO-SLOVAKS DEFENDING PAVLU

Statement From Vladivostok Denies Report Concerning His Recall

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Harbin, Nov. 24.—With reference to the statement from Vladivostok that Dr. Pavlu, former Plenipotentiary of the Czecho-Slovak Republic in Siberia in which post he has been succeeded by Dr. Girsa, has been recalled to Prague at the request of 50,000 Czecho-Slovak soldiers, "because he was considered a reactionary and listened only to the plan of the Kolchak party."

The Czecho-Slovak Bureau of Information issues the following:

"The recent Czecho-Slovak memorandum to the Allied Representatives was signed by both M. Pavlu and Dr. Girsa. It is not true that M. Pavlu has been recalled at the request of 50,000 Czecho-Slovak soldiers. He is leaving Siberia in consequence of his own repeated demand. M. Pavlu proved himself to be highly qualified to explain the Siberian situation and the position of the Czecho-Slovak forces there to the Prague Government.

"M. Pavlu never was reactionary or an adherent of the Kolchak regime. He has always befriended the democratic aspirations of the Russian liberal classes. During his activities, extending over more than a year, M. Pavlu fought for democratisation of the Omsk Administration, and by diplomacy and tact succeeded in carrying out a policy of loyalty to the Czecho-Slovak Government and to the Czecho-Slovak troops in Siberia without conspicuous friction with the Kolchak Government."

FIGHT SMUGGLERS WITH MOTOR RULE

Garage Keeper Is Fined For Failure To Register Patrons' Names

Application of the recently announced regulation compelling the registration of the names of persons hiring motor cars in an effort to check smuggling and other crimes was seen yesterday at the Mixed Court when a fine was imposed on a garage keeper for failure to comply with the ruling. Two opium smugglers, who operated at Woosung, escaped from the authorities through the failure of the garage keeper to obtain the names and addresses of his patrons.

Zang Ah-kee, manager of the Fee Lung Garage, 153 Hoopeh Road, was brought into court and fined $3. He explained that the motor car in question was rented by his assistants when he was absent from the garage.

Detective Inspector Eck told American Assessor Tenny and Magistrate Kwan that two opium smugglers hired a motor car, the number of which was obtained by the authorities. Investigation proved that the car had been hired from the Fee Lung Garage and inquiry there revealed that no record had been made of the identity of the patrons.

Zang was arrested under Municipal Notification No. 2654, published in the Municipal Gazette on October 9 of this year.

"Can you make Benger's?"
This was the first question asked of a Nurse by the Matron of a great hospital. The special way in which Benger's must be prepared demonstrates its difference from all other foods.
Benger's Food is not "made in a moment"; it takes a little time, because a first process of digestion occurs, both in the Food and the milk, while you prepare it.
BENGER'S Food
combines milk into a delicious biscuit-flavoured cream with the preliminary work of digestion already done. This means everything to delicate infants, invalids and aged persons!
Benger's is also one of the most highly nutritive foods known.
Benger's Food is entirely British in origin, ownership and manufacture. It is sold in this by Chemists, etc. everywhere. Carefully follow the directions on the tin when preparing it.

KOBE SHIP PLANT USING U.S. STEEL FOR NEW VESSELS

Company Stimulates Post-War Construction And Will Lease Bottoms

FREIGHTERS FOR AMERICA

Twenty Thousand Men Work For Kawasaki Utility On 8-Hour Basis

Seattle, Wash., U.S.A. October 28.—Thirty thousand tons of steel material, representing an expenditure of nearly $3,000,000, have been ordered from the United States Steel Corporation for shipment through Seattle to the Orient for the Kawasaki Dockyard Company, of Kobe, according to Ichiro Yamada, Seattle representative of the company.

This vast shipment of steel, practically all of which will be handled through Seattle, indicates that the Kawasaki Dockyard Company plans to stimulate its post-war shipbuilding program. This program, declared Mr. Yamada, will include the construction of at least two vessels of 9,000 tonnage every month during the next year. These vessels will be built for the account of the steamship department of the Kawasaki Dockyard Company, and will undoubtedly be leased to other companies operating steamship freight lines to Seattle and other American ports.

JAPANESE 8-HOUR DAY

"The Kawasaki Dockyard Company employes 20,000 workmen, and it is the only Japanese firm to grant the eight-hour day to its employes," declared Mr. Yamada. "The eight-hour day was allowed on October 1, somewhat after the working conditions and overtime wage allowances existing in Seattle shipyards. The company has ordered 30,000 tons of steel materials, aggregating a cost of about $2,700,000, which will be sent to our Kobe yards through Seattle. About a thousand tons in this order have already been despatched.

The Kowasaki Dockyard Company had previously contracted with the United States government to construct twelve steel freighters of 9,000 tons capacity. Seven of these vessels have already been turned out, while the remaining five ships will be delivered to the United States government before the end of the year, said Mr. Yamada.

With Seattle's facilities for handling trans-Pacific freight, shipping men declare this port will despatch this enormous steel order quickly and efficiently.

JAPANESE LINES TO GET SUBSIDY

Government Would Hold Shipping Advantages Gained In War

Tokio, November 18.—In the budget estimates for the next financial year the Department of Communications has provided about Y1,500,000 for the subsidising of new shipping lines. It is generally believed that new subsidies will be granted to the services to South America and the South Seas.

The object of the authorities is obviously to maintain and further develop the country's shipping trade which underwent great development during the war. There is no gainsaying the fact that the development was almost entirely due to the exigencies of the war situation; as a matter of fact, the Japanese services were opened or extended in places from which the services of the European countries had been withdrawn owing to the war.

It is to be expected that the new services of Japanese shipping companies should be affected by the resumption of foreign services. This probability engaged the attention of the authorities even before the conclusion of the armistice, and immediately on the termination of the war the Government despatched a number of officials to America and Europe to study the shipping situation and the marine policies of the various countries.

CONTEMPLATE CHANGES

The great change caused by the war in the shipping position of Japan has rendered some of the already subsidised lines less important from the viewpoint of subsidisation, while it has become desirable to have some of the newly opened lines subsidised. The authorities accordingly contemplate a sweeping change in the country's system of shipping subsidisation, and from this point of view they have been carrying on investigations.

The primary object of the subsidisation being to help promote the Japanese shipping trade against foreign services, much depends upon the policies of other countries in the matter of fixing the policy of Japan. It is understood, therefore, that the authorities have decided to postpone the proposed overhauling of the subsidisation system until after the international shipping situation has been restored to normal conditions, and for the time being to take only such measures as are necessary to meet the immediate exigencies of the situation.

NEW LINES MAY GET SUBSIDY

Under the circumstances it is believed that the Y1,500,000 now provided in the next budget is intended for subsidising the new shipping lines calling for urgent protection from the Government. It has been a subject of lively interest as to which of the lines opened during the war will be subsidised or whether new subsidised lines will be inaugurated. No one can yet definitely say what the intentions of the Government are, but it is unanimously agreed in shipping circles that the authorities attach the greatest importance to the services to South America and the South Seas of all the Japanese lines opened during the war. It is generally believed that it will be those lines which will be newly subsidised by the Government.

At present the Toyo Kisen Kaisha is maintaing a bi-monthly service to the west coast of South America. It is expected that this will be extended into a monthly service with a Government subsidy. It is also said that the Government will arrange to open a new subsidised line to the east coast of South America via Cape Horn. These are the lines which it is expected will be newly subsidised by the Government in regard to South America.

In the South Seas there already exist three subsidised lines. The first is the line of the Nanyo Yusen Kaisha, South Seas Mail Steamship Company, from Kobe to Soerabaya via Hongkong, Batavia and Samarang, which is subsidised by the Department of Communications. The second is the line from Formosa to Java via Manila and Borneo, and the third the Bangkok-Singapore line, both of which are subsidised by the Government-General of Formosa. In addition to these three lines, it is expected that the Department of Communications will open another subsidised line.

PASSENGERS CONSIDERED

On the above-mentioned lines to South America and the South Seas both passenger and cargo services are to be maintained. Besides, it is considered likely that a new passenger service between Shanghai and Japanese ports will be subsidised. This line will probably be opened by the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, and in this connection it may be recalled that the steamship company recently arranged to build specially fast passenger boats which its management acknowledge would be operated between Japan and China.

MONGOL OFFICIAL VISITING PEKING

Head Of Government To Take Part In Conferences To Be Held

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Nov. 24.—The Changchia Hutukhtu arrived in Peking last night. It is understood that he will take part in a conference regarding the Mongolian official system, in which Inner Mongolia is included.

As the Changchia Hutukhtu rendered most valuable services in connection with the cancellation of Mongolian autonomy, he together with Generals Chen Yi and Hsu Shu-tseng and many Mongol dignitaries, will receive high decorations. Brigadier-General Chu Chi-hsiang will be promoted to the command of the Division at Urga

GENERAL HSU ARRIVES

Peking, November 25.—General Hsu Shu-tseng arrived in Peking at mid-night and had an audience with the President this morning, accompanied by Enhua, Commissioner at Kobdo and Li-yuan, Commissioner at Kiatka. The reason given for the interview is that it is considered necessary to increase the number of Chinese troops at Urga, which require arrangement in view of the Sino-Japanese Military Pact, but it is reported on good authority that Chen-yi was arrested prior to Hsu Shu-tseng's departure from Urga and is still confined at headquarters of the Frontier Defense Force at Urga. Considerable anxiety is felt by Chen-yi's friends in view of Hsu Shu-tseng's well known summary methods of dealing with political opponents.

Money Cannot Buy More

It's made a real hit, and no wonder with such a beautiful Crepe de Chine. Hand-made, pure, in its original shade, it is offered to you in one piece, ten yards long and twenty six inches wide. Makes beautiful shirts. As a present for either sex what better article could you choose? There is sufficient Crepe in the piece to make the most beautiful dresses. For women's underwear it can't be beat. Think of the memories this Crepe brings to its owner. Think of the distance from whence it comes. Think of Marco Polo, of Kublai Kahn, of Kings, Queens and Millionaires. The richest people in the world cannot buy, any finer, more pliable silk than this Crepe de Chine. The price of twenty dollars per piece is within reach of all. Send along your cheque or Chinese postal money order, and we will at once mail you one piece of Szechwan Crepe de Chine, postage free. If you really want to be keen, send her a piece of Crepe de Chine.

MUTINEERS BRING ARMS TO AID FIUME

Sailors Force Italian Ship Captain To Divert Supplies Intended For Kolchak

Fiume, October 11, (Associated Press.)—The steamer Persia, bound from Genoa for the Far East with a cargo of 30,000 rifles, 10,000,000 cartridges, twenty batteries of mountain guns, and two heavy guns for the troops operating against the Bolsheviki, has arrived at Fiume. The crew mutinied in the Mediterranean and forced the Captain to take the steamer into Fiume.

The Persia with its valuable cargo, destined for Vladivostok, left Genoa on its course through the Suez Canal to the Pacific. After reaching the open sea the crew refused to take the vessel through the Suez Canal, and the commander, unable to check the mutiny, yielded to their demands that the ship be taken into Fiume and headed into the Adriatic, reaching Fiume Harbor Thursday.

An Italian plenipotentiary ordered to the Far East was aboard. He disembarked at Fiume and proceeded to Abbazia to await further orders from Rome.

This is the second "pirate" ship to reach Fiume within a week, the first being the steamer Frederick Beck, of 1,500 tons, with a cargo of general merchandise.

An open rupture occurred on Thursday between Gabriele d'Annunzio and Professor Zanella, leader of the Italian population of Fiume opposed to annexation of the city by Italy, but in favor of an Italian protectorate over it.

As a result of a campaign started by Professor Zanella against d'Annunzio, the latter summoned the professor to the palace. A long discussion ensued, in which Professor Zanella, according to the press accounts, exclaimed fiercely to d'Annunzio:

"Your presence is perilous to the interests of Fiume!"

D'Annunzio, enraged by Zanella's attitude, ordered him to leave the palace.

The incident has been widely discussed and has given further impetus, it is asserted, to the movement of the Zanella party, which favors a Fiumian republic under an Italian protectorate.

According to information reaching The Associated Press correspondent, the plan of General Grazioli, representing the Italian Government, for the settlement of the Fiume question includes the withdrawal of d'Annunzio's forces and their replacement by Italian regular troops.

Wilson, The Senate And The Constitution

By T. R. Jernigan

IT is reasonable to believe that President Wilson understood when negotiating the treaty of peace that there was an organic instrument known as the Constitution of the United States and which defined the powers of the government over which he presided as Chief Executive. But from the tenor of some of the reservations which the Senate would make, as a condition to ratifying the treaty, it appears that the Senators mainly in opposition to unreserved ratification could read, with profit, the Constitution of their country.

It may be assumed that the President never supposed it necessary to incorporate in the treaty any provision which related to the powers so clearly defined in the Constitution as of a domestic character. To make plain the idea here indicated, it will be sufficient to read the reservations which relate to the right of the American Government to provide for its support and defense. The questions pertaining to these subjects are strictly of a domestic character, and have never been thought necessary to be guaranteed by a treaty stipulation or even referred to in a treaty.

The American Government is independent in every sense that constitutes a sovereign power, and it has a written organic law, setting forth its powers, which all nations have recognised and taken full notice of, and the surprise is natural that any American citizen, whether a member of the Senate or not a member, should wish to imply, in a reservation to a treaty, a doubt about that sovereign power. The writer is not a blind follower of President Wilson, but certainly the President has not compromised the dignity and independence of his country by asking that either be admitted in a document like a treaty. He knows as well as any one that it was not in his province to agree to a treaty or a document of whatever character which violated any provision of the Constitution, nor could Congress and the President jointly negotiate or legislate outside of the Constitution. There is the American Supreme Court whose special function it is to determine when Congress or the President acts in accordance with the Constitution, and a treaty that was not in accordance with this instrument would be null and void from the beginning.

The Monroe Doctrine is not international law, and it is not understood why it was mentioned in the treaty of peace at all, or why the Senate should be so anxious to announce its privilege to interpret its meaning and application. The doctrine was proclaimed by President Monroe in his message of December 2, 1823, and was meant as a notice to all concerned that the destinies or independence of the South American Republics were not to be interfered with. Since the doctrine was proclaimed the American Government has seen that it was respected, but the doctrine could not be accepted as international law until it should become the common law of the States in all sections of the world. A state is forbidden to proclaim in its relations with other States certain rules of law. The rules could only be considered as the rules of public internal law, and somewhat similar to the right of a group of States situated on the same continent, in view of the development of their common interest, agreeing to proclaim in their relations with other States certain rules as their common law. International law is the common law of the world, the complement of legal rules likely to bring about the legal communion of all civilised States, and thus marking the line of difference between it and interstate law established by the American Republics.

And the Monroe Doctrine has no such meaning as the Japanese newspapers give it. It does not make the American Government paramount in South America, but, on the other hand, protective. There is not an element of paramountcy in the doctrine, and if Japan wishes to live up to the letter and spirit of the doctrine she can do so by ceasing her efforts to be paramount in China, and prove her appreciation, that to be paramount in China is not to protect China. If it be imagined that China was situated as South America, then President Monroe would have meant by his message that no outside power should interfere in the domestic affairs of China, or colonise, or appropriate, any part of her territory.

And such is the present policy of the American Government. No department of that Government is favorable to any nation occupying in a paramount sense any part of China, but the declaration of the Senate with reference to Shantung comes late and probably invites serious difficulties. The right of Japan to be in Shantung is endorsed by France, Great Britain and Italy, an endorsement which will hardly be receded from. The act of the Senate may have awakened hopes and expestations on the part of China that may be disappointed. Japan will doubtless hold the three nations named to the endorsement, and here arises an issue between those three Governments and the American Government, and when the joint moral influence of the four could, in all probability, have induced Japan to an amicable settlement.

Although the declaration of the Senate expresses the purpose to act independently between China and Japan, it is seen that Japan has the right to appeal to the honor of her endorsers to safeguard her interest. All the people of the United States are in sympathy with China, but from the viewpoint here presented the Senate has complicated the situation far more than the recognition of the endorsement by the President. And not only individuals but governments are inconsistent, as when Germany appropriated Shantung, the then Secretary of State, John Hay, classed Germany's rights in Shantung with the treaty rights of other foreign powers. Russia took Port Arthur and the Liaotung Peninsular from China, and when ceded to Japan a few years after by the Portsmouth Treaty, which the United States approved, no more was said about it.

Mr. Hay was the author of the Open Door Policy, and some of the Senators who are now attacking the President, because he refused to antagonise Great Britain and France, were in the Senate when Port Arthur and the Liaotung Peninsular, parts of the soil of China, were seized by Russia, and a few years later descended to Japan as the heir to Russia, and yet never thought of a reservation or resolution of protest. Here is Japan in China, as first the heir of Russia and a few years later the heir of Germany, with the endorsement of the two great nations of the European world, and the Tokio treaty signed by Peking ceding the right to the railways in Shantung.

By whatever name the co-operation of nations be called, there ought to be a League to at least undertake the adjustment of international equities. The great minds of the world favor the League of Nations as the more probable means of amicably settling controversies between nations, and are not willing for international affairs to drift. If it be arranged for the representatives of the nations to meet in a council room to discuss the grievances that may exist between any of them, there would be the certainty, not otherwise assured, of a friendly decision. The bond of a treaty is not strong enough to keep nations off of the battlefield. The united action of the principal nations could not only promote good relations but also command that there be peace.

The President went to Paris for no other purpose than to establish a covenant between nations to prevent future wars. He carried with him the plan of a League of Nations which he prepared at the time the delegates from the South American States assembled in Washington City sometime before the war with Germany, and he succeeded in having the main idea written into the treaty. If the Senate endangers the practical usefulness of the covenant, it has the power to do so, but the responsibility will not be with President Wilson, nor will it be so easy, as has been thoughtlessly intimated, that the affairs of the European world can go on regardless of the United States. Where are the means to go on?

The Lord's $300,000,000

From The Speech Of Francis J. McConnell, Of Denver, At The Interchurch World Movement Industrial Conference In New York

I do not think that we are called upon in these days to tie ourselves up with any kind of system as such. There have been on this floor since we began yesterday morning sentences that at least implied that the present system was the system that should be defended. And there have been other direct statements to the effect that the present system must be done away with and another system must be put in its place. It is well for us to remember that at the best all these systems are relative and there is no one system that has absolute authority and absolute right of obedience. The most that we can say of systems is that one system is better for a given time than other systems. In the final state of things all we shall need of any kind of rule is just a gentleman's agreement; that is all. Now you can see that we couldn't put that into effect today for two reasons; first of all, we haven't enough gentlemen, and in the second place they don't agree.

* * *

Now, let us think of some things. In these days in all the churches we have come to the place where the Church has or is to have control of large sums of money. In the Methodist Church, to take two instances, the Board of Education has announced recently that there have been accumulated sums to the amount of twenty millions of dollars to be invested in educational purposes. These are held as endowment funds in the various colleges. The centenary which has been so splendidly successful will collect in the next five years the sum of one hundred and thirteen or fifteen millions of dollars. The Methodist Church had thirty-five millions more—is that right?—about fifty millions more. The Presbyterian Church announces that it is to have a movement for the collection of seventy-five or eighty millions of dollars, and the Baptist convention at Denver, which I had the pleasure of attending last June, said that it would want one hundred millions of dollars to meet the needs, the Christian needs, of the denomination in the next five or six years.

* * *

Now, you can total those sums which will pass over to this great interchurch movement that we are planning, and the least figure I have heard suggested is three hundred millions of dollars, and I have heard some of the people put it far beyond that. Don't misunderstand. Those that know me best know that personally I have been connected with the centenary movement in our own Church to the utmost of my ability, and I am heart and soul in the interchurch movement and doing everything I can possibly do for it. But there are certain things we might just as well accept if we are going to have the largest success in this movement. We have got to recognise that when you place hundreds of millions of dollars in the hands of a Church you tie that Church up to an existing economic system, no matter what it may be. There is no getting away from it.

Now, since that is true, there are certain things that we have to lay down, it seems to me, for our practice, and the first is this: We have to think of the Church in the first place as a spender of money. If that kind of sum, that amount of money, is to come into the hands of the Church, then certainly there should be utmost wisdom in the spending of the money.

If we are going to get $300,000,000 or more there should be some guarantee, some statement, some pledge, some promise that this money, in part at least, is to be used for a purpose the idea of which is to look out upon the world not merely from the standpoint of the individualistic relationship, but from the standpoint of the larger social relationships; and, of course, this meeting itself seems just that. But if we are going to have sums of money of that kind, men, it should have exact scrutiny as to the way the money is spent from the standpoint of the larger social purpose.

* * *

Now, in the next place, let me say that if we are going to have the sum of $300,000,000, that means that the Church is to become an investor of funds; and that is another way that it is tied up with the existing system of things—it becomes an investor of funds.

We say that Church and State should keep separate, because we want the Church to exert its paternal function in the community and place it out of the range of profit in case anything in the political situation goes wrong.

We cannot separate the Church and the economic situation in the same way, but it seems to me that we can insist upon this—that in the investment of its money the Church keep in mind just this: that the existing economic system is under attack, and it will be under attack for years to come, at the point of rent and of interests, and of profit and things of that kind.

What do I mean? Miss Veda Scudder, sociological professor at Wells College, was talking about this same matter in an article in "The Area Survey" some time ago. She goes further than you and I would care to go. She wants to see that system done away with, but she says this: "The next step for us to take in the handling of all great controversies of a religious kind is to have what is known as a list of funds that under the existing circumstances and under the existing system work with the social ideal in mind."

* * *

Some time ago there was a meeting of the faculty of the Union Theological Seminary, and Williams Adams Brown—he does not know I am going to say this; he wouldn't care to have me say this—made this proposition in the meeting of the faculty, that the faculty of the Union Theological Seminary go before the board of trustees, not knowing anything about the funds and where they come from, that they go before the board of trustees and ask those trustees to invest, so far as the funds of that seminary were concerned, only in institutions that were working from the standpoint of the largest social outlook and they would take their return in salary from the funds that came from concerns of that kind, even if it meant a substantial reduction in salary.

That is what I mean by the wise use of funds. We must work under that system; the system is here; it is taken for granted by all the speakers that have been speaking. And we are not here as radical revolutionary people, but we are trying to adjust ourselves so as to make the most of the present system for the Kingdom of God.

* * *

Now we come to something else—and that is very important, it seems to me—and it is this: In this new Church movement as we look out to the nations of the earth we may just as well remember that the great problem in the present days is not merely the problem of labor in our country, but the problem of the relation between the so-called more favored nations and the so-called backward nations. And the Christian Church has to stand as a protest and has to stand as a corrective in the work that it does to the various exploiting schemes in foreign fields. That is what it must do. It may be that I speak with peculiar feeling about t[his] because I have had for sev[eral] years something to do with t[he] Mexican situation. The sins Mexico, the real sins that Mex[ico] has committed, have been the that she possesses oil and s[ilver] possesses silver and she possess[es] copper and she possesses possibi[li]ties of rubber. Those are t[he] sins that she has committed, a[nd] those make the trouble.

Now, the Christian Churc[h] having back of it now these i[m]mense sums of money, must go [in] in a corrective way, and I d[e]plore anything that looks li[ke] any kind of financial enterpri[se] in the foreign field that has a[ny] tinge of spoliation about it wha[t]soever because it hinders th[e] work. George Francis Train sa[id] one time, "I object to sendin[g] missionaries to China to conve[rt] the Chinamen and soldiers [to] shoot the Chinamen." This w[as] at the time of the opium war. "[I] object," he said, "to sendin[g] them on the same boat, becaus[e] when you send them on the sam[e] boat it is apt to beget confusio[n] in the Chinamen's minds."

That Settled It

"Well," said the Far We[st] Mayor to the English touris[t] "I dunno' how you manage thes[e] affairs in your country, but ov[er] here when some of our boys g[et] tied up in that thar bankru[pt] telephone company I was tellin[g] yer, about, they became migh[ty] crusty."

"Oh!"

"Yes, they didn't like the wa[y] the receiver was handlin' th[e] business nohow."

"Indeed!" commented the earn[est] listener. "Then may I as[k] what they did?"

"Sartinly; I was goin' to te[ll] yer. They just hung up th[e] receiver."

Old Eggs

The grocer observed that hi[s] best customer was a bit ruffle[d] over something, so strove to [be] obliging and pleasant.

"I think," he said, blandly, "li[fe] ing is getting cheaper. For i[n]stance, a year ago those eg[gs] would have cost you twopen[ce] more."

"A year ago," replied the cu[s]tomer, "when these eggs we[re] fresh, they would have been wor[th] more."

The New German Constitution

(New York Journal of Commerce)

There are many points of extreme interest in the provisions of the new German Constitution recently completed by the National Assembly at Weimar. It should be remembered that, like France, between the years 1871 to 1875, or even the Southern Confederacy between February, 1861, and February 22, 1862, Germany since last November has been under the control of a Provisional Government and Constitution, and now, as in the cases mentioned above, the nation is about to be placed under a permanent fundamental law and form of government. It is only at the present time that we are able at last to see to some extent just what spirit and intent is behind the present German rulers.

First of all, the Germans use the word "Reich" to describe the nation, but this hardly should be translated "empire" as heretofore, since it is more nearly akin in meaning to our use of the word "nationality," or "organised commonwealth." The Constitution, like many other such documents throughout the world, grants certain fundamental rights to the individual, such as the equality of all Germans before the law; freedom of speech, of the press, and of assembly; belong to societies and organisations, and to social, political or religious groups. But in contrast to this and most other constitutions, the British and American constitutions themselves are merely additional guarantees of pre-existing individual rights which, under the English common law, are considered inherent and inalienable to each citizen. Furthermore, the German people are declared sovereign, which is a far cry from Bethmann-Hollweg's celebrated speech in the Prussian Landtag during November, 1909, in which he said that there was no such principle recognised as the sovereignty of the people, but that the Hohenzollerns had made Prussia, while the people merely assisted.

One provision which is entirely new to constitution making is that which states that the generally recognised rules of international law shall be binding on the nation, and that the President "shall represent it (the nation) under international law." Probably this Government follow closely French, and not British or American, precedent. Again, the term of office in the Reichstag is four years, as is that of the French Chamber of Deputies. The Germans also follow the French provision that preferential rights and drawbacks of birth and position are removed and titles of nobility, though permitted, are considered only as parts of a person's name.

There are possibilities of international trouble in the provisions that every German "permitted to emigrate" will have the privilege of being protected in foreign countries and that no German may be delivered up to a foreign country for punishment. When considered in the light of recent history, it behooves our Government, as well as those of our allies, to find out exactly how far this applies to the iniquitous German doctrine of dual citizenship, to the right of expatriation, and also to treaties for the extradition of criminals. These are points upon which we must be alert, for certainly Germany should be admitted to no League of Nations until she makes it plain that she does not intend to use these provisions, as in the past, to shield criminal and unfriendly propaganda in other countries.

It may be remarked that the French Constitution was made with the understood purpose that the Government might be easily changed from a republic into a constitutional monarchy merely by changing the President into a King and making his office hereditary. The continuation of the French Republic has surprised many people, but it is a convincing proof that France, after many experiments lasting for more than a century, has decided finally upon her republican form of government. While it is too much to say that the same ulterior purpose has actuated the minds of the makers of this German Constitution, yet there is a possibility that it was their object to prepare the way for a Hohenzollern restoration. The German people probably are still in large measure loyal to the family of their former imperial rulers. If a restoration is intended, no more clever and effective way than the present one could have been invented to accomplish it.

It is the most durable of all decorations, lasting for years with freshness unimpaired, whereas wall-papers deteriorate from the first day by fading and accumulating dust and dirt.

Hall's Distemper is a thorough disinfectant, and is applied directly upon the wall, forming a hard surface, from which dust and dirt may be "spring-cleaned" by lightly sponging with warm water.

Is Fragile Woman A Sex Delusion

By Louis Lee Arms

(New York Tribune)

Is the belief that woman is physically weaker than man a delusion of sex?

Dr. Anna L. Brown, chairman of the program committee of the International Conference of women Physicans, thinks such is the case. So do others. She says:

"The whole relation of women to the marriage problem and to the economic and social problems of the day is to a certain extent a problem of health, for women too often believe themselves physically unequal to independent economic life and so submit to unhappy marriages.

"Even in the business world women are the victims of their own delusions. They cling to the antiquated idea that they are less strong than men, and so meekly accept smaller salaries and less responsible positions, feeling that their health is not equal to the demands of higher positions.

"Even when a woman knows from her own personal experience that she is just as strong as a man she cannot enforce her rights because of the delusions of 'weaker sisters' all about her. We must make women physically strong before we can solve the problems of modern industrial, political and social life."

In a paper read before the conference she said further:

"The fact remains that women are proverbial sinners against health. Their traditional and acquired attitude of mind toward health is one of assumption that as women they are entitled to special consideration on every kind of pretext.

"From the days of chivalry when knights placed their ladies on pedestals for knightly worship and went forth to do valiant deeds with all the greater freedom, the conception of woman as the weaker vessel has been soundly lodged in women's minds, and none the less in men's minds, and this in spite of the fact that through all the ages women have performed huge tasks of endeavor and endurance without physical detriment."

DOES SHE WILL IT?

Is it not, then, that woman is weaker because she so wills?

Mythology, history and modern science attempt to answer.

There were in the days of the classic ancients the Amazonians. The Amazon was tall as Jim Jeffries, swift as Tom Longboat and warlike as a mate for Mars. She mainly practised two arts, which in primitive culture always have been man's. These are fighting and hunting.

She sent expeditionary forces to Scythia, Thrace, the coasts of Asia Minor, Syria and Egypt. Her tribe was supposed to have founded many towns, among them Smyrna, Ephesus, Sinope and Paphos. Each year the stately Amazons paid a visit to the Gargareans—a neighboring tribe—and later killed or sent back to their fathers the male children while withholding the female.

The Amazon woman waging war beside the Euxine Sea, armed with bow, spear, axe and a half shield in the shape of a crescent, presented a spectacle of physical and volitional parity with man that never since has been excelled.

Neither is that parallel afforded by Bohemian history which relates that in the eighth century a large band of women under the leadership "of a certain Vlasta" carried on war against the dukes and lords of Bohemia and enslaved or put to death all the men they captured.

Again in the sixteenth century the Spanish explorer Orellana asserted that he came into contact with "fighting women" in South America on the River Maranon—now named the Amazon—yet the chronicles of his skirmish indicate that the degree of their bellicosity was offset by the tactical flaws in their technique. Women were said to have been in the army of Dahomey, and in the late war they attempted to cut a figure in Russia

But, on the whole, nowhere in history do women measure up, physically or in their capacity for belligerence, to the Amazonians. In a way it is almost tragic that in many quarters the Amazon is accounted a purely mythical creature.

Coming from Attic to American history there certainly are no women in our contemporary life so competent physically as the Amazons.

Mollie Bjurstedt cannot beat William Johnston at tennis; the Barnard College basketball five would be slaughtered by Yale; Charlotte Boyle is brilliantly fast in the water, yet Norman Ross can outswim her; "Chick" Evans would have to give many strokes to Alexa Stirling, and so on, assuming that in each of these events the element of courtesy were eliminated.

On the other hand, when it comes to "stirring a cake" much is to be said for Martha as against Henry; and in the matter of bending over a washtub Mrs. John Smith is alleged to knock the spots off her husband.

This is important, for it is primitive testimony as well as modern. Let man boast not too much of his physical superiority. He is faster afoot, addicted to war and attains the stature of the heroic in many muscular instances; yet in the matter of industrial arts woman ever has been his superior. Those tasks which require endurance rather than muscularity are painstakingly done by woman, where man wilts.

Every soldier or sailor who, when he was in uniform, peeled potatoes or washed dishes, as a member of the "K. P.," or scrubbed floors and polished windows, when assigned to the work squad, will probably be willing to agree that the wonder that women could do these tasks uncomplainingly day after day was the only sensation that exceeded his distaste for such duties. On this proposition we should anticipate nothing less than a unanimous vote.

COMPARISONS

In "Man and Woman" Havelock Ellis sets forth some comparative sex data that may well be examined before passing into the speculative field of the physical future of woman. He says:

" 'A man hunts, spears fish, fights and sits about,' said an Australian Kurnai once; the rest is woman's work. This may be accepted as a fair statement of the sexual division of labor among very primitive peoples. It is a division of labor which is altogether independent of race and climate. Among the Esquimau, in their snowhouses on the opposite side of the globe, there is the same division of labor as among the Australian. The tasks which demand a powerful development of muscle and bone, and the resulting capacity for intermittent spurts of energy, involving corresponding periods of rest, fall to the man; the care of the children and all the various industries which radiate from the hearth and call for an expenditure of energy more continuous, but at a lower tension, fall to the woman.

"The militant belongs to men; the industrial to women. The man undergoes the fatigue of hunting, and when he has thrown the game at a woman's feet his work is done; it is her part to carry it and to cook it, as well as to make the vessels in which the food is placed. The skins and the refuse are hers to utilise and all the industries connected with clothing are chiefly in her hands."

Citing the fact that in Europe men and women work and are educated side by side, Ellis says:

"Such conditions have tended to remove artificial sex differences, and have largely obliterated the coarser signs of superiority, which may before have been possessed by one sex over another."

The female is not only the founder of industrial arts, but it is a fact that at certain ages she is physically the superior, as witness:

"In Great Britain girls grow more rapidly than boys between the ages of ten and fifteen; and at the ages of eleven and a half to fourteen and a half they are actually taller, and between the ages of twelve and a half and fifteen and a half actually heavier than boys at the same age. The acceleration in the growth of girls seems to be coincident with a retardation in the growth of boys At the age of fifteen boys again take the lead, growing at first rapidly and then more slowly, and their complete growth is attained practically about the age of twenty-three. Girls, on the other hand, grow very slowly after the age of sixteen and attain their full stature about the twentieth year. Both in Europe and the United States the year of most active growth appears in boys to be the sixteenth, in girls the thirteenth o (as in Sweden) the fourteenth."

The trend of scientific opinion tends to support the proposition that woman is not physically the inferior of man, and the diversity of her talents more than offsets the high tension muscularity of the male. Yet school and industrial statistics in the matter of sickness indicate that this parity is more apparent than real.

SICKNESS FOR ADVANTAGE

Dr. Kristine Mann, of 251 West 100th Street, offers a reason for this actual inferiority.

"Woman," she says, "takes very little responsibility for her health. She is not ashamed of being sick. On the contrary, she regards it somewhat as a privilege, for it insures her a day off when she could not get a day off to prevent that very sickness. Around the house sickness becomes a compelling power for getting things, and she exerts it as an actual weapon against her husband, family, etc. She will be weaker than man until she changes her attitude toward health. It is difficult to say when that time will come. It probably will be thousands of years hence.

"As it stands now, woman must radically change her training if she is to be efficient in industry or as a mother and homemaker First, she must do things that increase the opportunities for making health. It happens in New York that this is extremely difficult. In the boroughs of Manhattan and The Bronx there are fewer than ten swimming pools restricted to women and there is no public gymnasium for their use.

"She must exercise systematically and take a real interest in her health. To do this she must abandon high-heeled shoes. For every fallen arch imputed to low heels there are hundreds of physically unfit women in New York whose condition primarily may be laid to the fact that they do not get sufficient exercise indeed cannot, in high heels High heels are a greater scourge then corseting."

ENVIRONMENT

Dr. Holmes C. Jackson, professor of physiology at New York University, agrees that woman has not developed her physical possibilities.

"Potentially," he declared, "woman is as strong as man. Her failings are largely environmental. It is conceivable that man under the conditions which women have lived under for hundreds of years would deteriorate physically until woman would be his muscular equal. In fact, she would be his superior if during the time he abandoned sports and labor that build up his physical being she took them up. It would take many years to bring this about, but it is altogether in the realm of possibility.

"So far as her physical condition is concerned woman has long taken an erroneous view. She gives up too easily to imaginary illness. In time the counterfeit takes on the look of the real. All of us know such women. They may believe that they belong in bed at least once a month; oftentimes more. Other women go about business with the same viewpoint toward physical condition as men. These are in the majority and are proof that the normal condition of woman might be much the same as man's.

"Trained correctly and her environment altered, woman in a few generations could play football, baseball and other games with quite the same facility as man. But probably she never will do this. Personally, I hope not. Yet that she has greatly weakened herself physically is due entirely to her fallacious point of view in regard to muscular condition and health. Potentially she is the equal of man."

IN BUSINESS

Dr. M. J. Fein, pathologist at the Broad Street Hospital and until recently associated with a pathological unit in the medical service of the United States army, disagrees with the theory that women ever will become the industrial equals of men.

"Facts will not bear out Dr. Anna L. Brown," he declared. "The nervous system of woman is unstable and she cannot stand the strain of continuous worry that executive ability requires. Woman does not correctly estimate the nature of man. A study of business institutions will prove that the percentage of women who year in and year out stand the strain required by executive ability is very small.

"In our experience during the war we found that while women proved competent workers they were not qualified to lead and this experience would warrant the belief that this is a normal condition."

Carl Easton Williams, editor of Physical Culture, is not so sure of man's immutable superiority He says:

"It is not true that 'the female of the species is more deadly than the male' so far as humans are concerned. She is more lively; not more deadly. It is not true that woman is the weaker vessel because she is smaller and more daintily built. A man has more bulk, more bone and, therefore, develops more beef, more muscle, to be able to move and handle this excess of bone. Of course, being bigger, man is superior muscularly.

"But a man's superiority in strength is muscular, not vital or functional. The woman's is the more vital organism. Think of the tax of maternity. To begin with, girl babies die less easily than boys—and at the other end of the scale there are more old ladies. They can bear large families and yet live longer.

ENDURANCE

"Men have the advantage when it comes to immediate strength, as in athletics. But women have the advantage in endurance in connection with some moderate effort. One recommends a man for moving a piano. A man can run faster, jump higher or throw a ball further, but a woman can dance longer. And when it comes to the rub-a-dub-dub on a washboard, which is real work but does not require great strength, a healthy woman could keep at it hours longer than a football player or a circus strong man. A woman could probably play a piano longer each day and more hours each week without a breakdown in health than a man."

In passing from the field of expert to lay testimony, the opinion of Mrs. Noble McConnell, 104 West Seventieth Street, society and club woman and colonel of the Women's Police Reserves, was solicited.

MORE SENSIBLE NOW

"As to whether woman ever will be, or aspires to be, the physical equal of man, I cannot say," said Mrs. McConnell. "But I do believe that woman is more sensible of her physical welfare now than she ever has been. She is wearing common sense clothes, and there are more women playing tennis and golf and motoring and flying now than there ever have been. The small waist has gone permanently. Everything tends toward the upbuilding of woman's strength, with the retention of the grace and daintiness for which the American girl is famed."

PLACE FOR EACH

To Mrs. William M. Haradon, of 215 West Ninety-fifth Street, no physical millennium for woman appears imminent, nor does she believe that woman wishes to meet man in business life on the basis of physical equality.

"Woman's place is not altogether in the home," she said, "but her home duties combined with those for which the war taught her she is fitted make up a combination which if well done, is sufficient to any woman. Personally, I hope women never will have to show the same strength as men. They can each occupy different planes the more advantageously. There are little things around a house that a man never could be trusted to accomplish, and there are in all married lives big, important moments which are better met by the man. It strikes me that it is no more necessary for woman to encroach upon that ground which we have come to regard as belonging to the male than it is for man to invade some pet dominion of woman. Both have their place, so why not keep it?"

Gifts To Sandringham Credited To Wanamaker

London, September 27.—An American millionaire who has made anonymously several munificent gifts to Sandringham Church, has just added another—a 400-year-old Spanish cross of filigree silver.

It is now known, says The Daily Mail, that Mr. Wanamaker of New York is the millionaire in question, and his name appears in a wonderful old Bible with jewel-studded cover, which was one of his first gifts to the church.

D'Annunzio Warns Of Death Penalty

Fiume, October 18..—Gabriele d'Annunzio has announced that the most rigorous martial law will be invoked in dealing with persons suspected of being unfavorable to the Fiume cause.

"The city of Fiume will be considered as a fortress in time of war," the announcement says. "Whoever professes sentiments hostile to the cause of Fiume will be considered a public enemy and the penalty of death will be immediately carried out."

Taken literally, it is pointed out in some quarters, the decree automatically would make the Croats enemies of the d'Annunzio cause, but the belief is expressed that only those who actually carry on a campaign against the d'Annunzio regime will be affected.

The latest Film released 1919.
When America was straining every nerve to provide food for war-stricken Europe—
Denying themselves that their allied comrades-in-arms might not perish—
A clique whose only god was money, cornered food supplies and boosted prices sky-high.
This photoplay gives an insight into the nefarious methods of the notorious so-called "Food Trust."
